CONGRESS TO QUIT IN MAY

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

HENRY FORD, who as much as any man in our time has the faculty every once in a while of saying exactly what the common citizen is thinking, denounces in today's paper the Roosevelt Big Navy Program.

Roosevelt Is to Restore Mail to Private Air Lines

President Suggests New Contracts on Competitive Bidding

TERM OF 3 YEARS

Senate and House Postal Leaders Endorse Roosevelt's Plan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt Wednesday proposed return of the air mail to commercial companies as soon as possible under new legislation providing for "honest payment of honest service."

He suggested new contracts be let for a period not exceeding three years under competitive bidding. The Interstate Commerce Commission would pass on the question of air mail routes and fix maximum payments.

In a letter to Chairman McCellar and Meade of the senate and house postoffice committees and Chairman Black of the senate investigating committee, Mr. Roosevelt said: "Enactment of legislation along the lines I have suggested will establish a sound, stable and permanent air mail policy."

Payments Held Up

The president's letter was made public at the close of a day which saw Col. Paul Henderson, vice president of the United Aircraft & Transportation Co., testify before Black's committee that his company had not received payments for mail carried from January 1 until the time its contract was ordered annulled along with the others on January 9.

Inquiry at the Postoffice Department disclosed payments to all companies had been held up and would not be made until the pay question had been studied by Postmaster General Farley and Attorney General Cummings. The Justice Department is understood to have studied the testimony before Black's committee to see whether there was a basis for prosecution in connection with charges of fraud and collusion upon which the old contracts were cancelled. McCellar said an air mail bill now in preparation carrying out recommendations of the president, probably would be introduced Thursday or Friday. Members of the committee have agreed on the substance of the bill, he added, but not on some of the details.

Free Paid Lehr Fess

Before Colonel Henderson disclosed that his company had not received its January mail pay, he told the senate committee he had paid several thousand dollars to Lehr Fess, son of Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, to "expedite" passage of the Wartime act in 1930 under which air mail extensions were made.

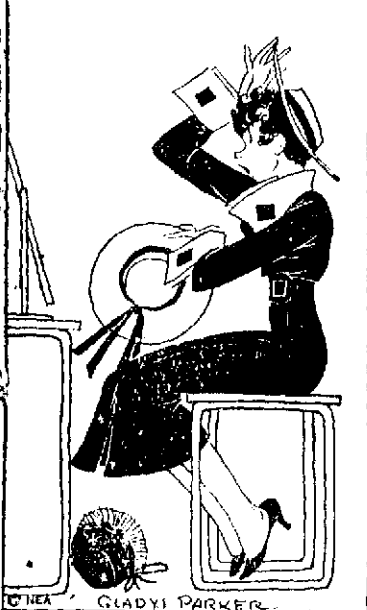

He explained the mail certificate of one of United's subsidiary lines would have expired had not the bill been passed and that he had become "concerned" for its fate after it had been approved by the house and a senate committee.

The amount paid to Lehr Fess was either $2,000 or $3,000, Henderson said.

SNOW, NORTH STATE

Quarter-Inch of Rain in This Vicinity Thursday Morning

Winter made another bold stand against the onslaught of spring Wednesday night, the fall of a Northern blizzard whipping down the local temperature 42 degrees in 11 hours.

A cold rain started falling after midnight Thursday morning, totalling ¼ inch according to the instruments of the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station.

Hope was enjoying spring weather Wednesday. The mercury stood at 75½ degrees at 6 p. m.—but at 8:15 it began falling. It dropped sharply at 9 p. m., negotiating 24 degrees in 15 minutes.

By 11 p. m. the temperature was 38, and before daylight the mercury touched 33½ for a total drop of 42 degrees.

The forecast is fair Thursday night and Friday, with continued cold Thursday but warmer temperatures Friday.

Snow in North Arkansas
LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Snow covered a large section of Arkansas Thursday, swept in by cold winds that drove away the spring-like weather of the last few days.

The snowfall in the central and eastern parts of the state was the heaviest of this winter, but it melted rapidly as the temperature stood well above the freezing point.

A terrific electrical storm Wednesday night preceded the blizzard. The temperature at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon was 74. Overnight it dropped to 32.

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Governor Putrell said Thursday there will be no special legislative session for acts believed to be needed to insure Public Works Administration (PWA) loans for the state hospital unless those interested obtained an agreement from the legislators to pass such laws in a minimum length of time.

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Lieutenant Colonel Felix Emmannuelli was relieved Thursday as commander of the Arkansas district Civilian Conservation Camp (CCC) and was ordered transferred to San Antonio, Texas, to become professor of military science and tactics in the high schools there. He will be succeeded by Major James Schwenck of the United States cavalry.

City to Eliminate Shover & 3rd Turn

Gulf Buys Murphy Property, Ceding Last of Right-of-Way

The last technical details in the city's effort to straighten out the double-turn on Highway 67 at Third and Shover streets were nearing completion Thursday with the announcement that a $3,500 filling station would be erected under provisions giving the city 25 feet right-of-way.

A representative of the Gulf Oil company was here Thursday completing a deal with S. L. Murphy for the purchase of his property, which lies at the southeast corner of the intersection.

Erection of the filling station is to be completed on or before July 1.

A permit by the city council was issued to Mr. Murphy last August for the construction of the station. Mr. Murphy said Thursday that the permit would be transferred to the Gulf company under the provisions in which it was issued to him.

Last summer the city council granted Miss Laura Reader a permit under similar provisions for erection of a filling station on the northwest corner, giving the city 25 feet right-of-way.

This means 50 feet additional width to Third street, changing the present double-turn to a wide so traffic can negotiate the turn without danger.

Granting of the permit was brought up at a meeting of the city council Tuesday night when it was decided that the traffic hazard would be corrected by July 1.

Other business before the council was the granting of a permit for construction of a individual gasoline tank at the rear of Ritchie Grocer company.

A committee was appointed to draft a resolution on the death of the late Policeman Brice Arnold.

The robbers wore dark glasses.

FORT MYERS, Fla. — (AP) — Charging that a small group of men were responsible for war through the manufacture of munitions and by fostering international distrust, Henry Ford thinks Senator Borah "had the right idea" in his attack on the half billion dollar program and other army and navy construction.

"The people in general don't want war," said Ford, "but it has been forced on them by scheming munitions makers looking for enormous profits through the sale of arms."

Experiment Farm Offers Prizes for Best Log-Sawyers

Sawing Contest to Be Held on Visiting Day Friday, March 16

LECTURE PROGRAM

Specialists to Discuss Truck Crop Problems at Local Farm

In addition to the regular program, and as an appropriate entertainment feature, a log-sawing contest will be held at the University of Arkansas Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station, on spring visiting day, Friday, March 16.

Interest is being manifested in the contest, and teams of two men each from several communities of Hempstead and other counties have entered the contest to determine the champion log sawyers of this section.

The low-sawing contest is quite simple, yet exciting. Each team will be provided with a cross-cut saw and a 12-inch log. At the sound of the gong, the judges will require each team to saw off three blocks from their respective logs. Valuable prizes will be awarded the three teams completing the task first.

This feature promises to provide entertainment to the many visitors who will attend from Hempstead and many other south Arkansas counties. Other teams desiring to enter the contest are requested to communicate with the experiment station immediately, states G. W. Ware, assistant director in charge.

The regular visiting day program this spring will offer many things of interest to those who are anxious to replace their farm activities to best advantage, as a result of the cotton reduction plan.

First hand information will be given by College of Agriculture and Extension specialists on pruning, spraying, fertilizing, tree planting and management, pasture building, plant and sweet potato growing, landscape gardening, soil improvement, cover crops and many other timely and practical subjects.

Short talks on the new farm deal will be made in the afternoon by Dean Dan T. Gray, dean and director of the College of Agriculture, and T. Roy Reid, assistant director, in charge of the agricultural extension service.

Unfavorable weather will not interfere with the meeting or the comfort of the visitors. Transportation has been provided to drive the visitors through the farm. The program begins at 10 o'clock and ends at 3.

W. F. Johnson Is Buried, Columbus

Bradley Man Brought Home for Funeral Thursday Afternoon

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon from First Presbyterian church in Columbus for W. F. Johnson, 63, who died at his home in Walnut Hill, near Bradley, Wednesday night following an extended illness. The Rev. E. C. Rutledge, pastor of First Methodist church of Hope, conducted the services, and burial was in Columbus cemetery.

Mr. Johnson is survived by his widow and five brothers, Jim of Amarillo, Texas; J. H. of Broken Bow, Okla.; H. L. of Fulton; J. O. and T. L. Johnson, of Columbus.

Dr. Williams Will Discuss Marriage

Lecture on Courtship Followed by Another on Social Theme

"The Marriage Ceremony, Its implications and obligations," will be the subject of the lecture of Dr. J. M. Williams at First Methodist church at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night.

As a setting for the discussion, Miss Evelyn Murphy will sing, "I Love You Truly," and Mrs. H. D. Mayer will at the close of the service sing, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Mrs. B. C. Hyatt will be at the organ.

In speaking of "Courtship" Wednesday night Dr. Williams pleaded for a higher ideal of the relation between the sexes. Going back to the old traditions of the Southern gentleman, whose ideal was that a man would give his life for the protection of a woman committed to his care, he developed the thought of the sacredness of the love of a man and a woman. A striking feature of the address was his insistence that the love affairs of a boy and girl should never be made light of.

Illustrating the plight of the girl to God at the altar when one comes to church membership, he made the statement that even as one would never make light of that union of God and man so never ought we make light of man and woman in love.

As he developed that theme one could see that to him mating was something far more significant and sacred than the mere fulfillment of the "biological urge." He plainly said that the attraction of man and maid is fulfillment of the divine plan. The highest experience in human relationship comes when one man and one woman walk together in love through the years.

Dr. Williams announced that Thursday night he would follow the implications of this position in his discussion of the marriage ceremony. His hearing by the people continues.

They Wed in Defiance of King

LONDON, Eng. — (AP) — Against the wishes of the Swedish royal family, Sigvard, prince of Sweden, duke of Uppland, and grandson of the Swedish king, was married at the registry office Thursday to Fraulien Erika Patzek, 22, daughter of a Berlin industrialist.

Sigvard, who became a successful motion picture director in a Berlin studio, was ostracized by the Swedish royal family several weeks ago when he announced his engagement to Miss Patzek, who also had attained success in the films.

Fearing publicity the young couple left Germany secretly, only to be located again in London.

Radio Sends Police on Chase of Sedan With Man and Woman

CHICAGO — (AP) — Police radio flashed directions to all available squad cars at 12:36 o'clock Thursday afternoon to speed to a South Side neighborhood where John Dillinger and a woman were reported seen.

Police were notified that the escaped killer drove past the Southmoor hotel in a small sedan.

He was reported seen in the same vicinity Wednesday night by a gas-line station attendant.

President Determined to Save Most of His Economy Bill

OPTIMISM EVIDENT

Adjournment Plans Announced by Roosevelt and Robinson

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Once congress votes tariff-bargaining powers to the president, winds up the appropriations to run the government for the next year, and enacts the 258-million-dollar tax bill, the administration will be ready for adjournment.

This developed in a conference Thursday between President Roosevelt and Democratic Leader Robinson of the senate, with the first two weeks in May as the announced time for seeking to close the session.

The measures already mentioned, while stipulated as foremost, do not represent all that's wanted.

A form of relief for bankrupt municipalities, and simplified stock exchange regulations are included in the calculations, along with the air-mail proposals which were forwarded to the capitol Wednesday.

House Leaders Called In

WASHINGTON — (AP) — In trip-hammer fashion the administration pressed forward its program at one point after another Thursday while attempting at the same time to have the industrial skeptics join in their own way.

For President Roosevelt the immediate objective was the softening in the House of the Senate's blow at the budget through its votes to liberalize veterans' compensation and restore federal employees' pay.

The house leaders who now have the big money bill in custody were called to the White House prior to a Democratic caucus on the question Thursday afternoon.

For the recovery movement, Administrator Johnson and spokesmen of the heavy industries opposed to his suggestion for cutting code hours gathered in committee to devise methods by which they believe employment and business activity can best be stimulated.

Banker Rips Administration

CHICAGO — (AP) — J. M. Nichols, President of the First National bank of Englewood, renewed his attacks Wednesday on the administration's banking policies by sending a letter to Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Nichols has refused to go along with the government's plan to insure bank deposits and Wednesday he criticized Jones' demands that banks expand their credits to industry.

In part, Nichols wrote: "My attention has been called to the March 1 edition of the American Banker, which reports you as compiling a 'black book' in which will be listed the names of such banks as have shown unwillingness to make loans on responsible securities for the aid of industry and business. It speaks of pressure to be exerted through the RFC on banks incurring the displeasures of the administration and intimates that such banks may be dealt with."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Color Galore Marks NRA Squawk Session . . . Johnson Shows Loss of Steam . . . G. O. P. Cast in New Role . . . Mr. Brown Fires a Shot.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON. "All roads once more lead to NRA."

No one here is very clear about what will come out of the big free-for-all "squawk meeting" and the subsequent code authority Congress, but General Johnson is on the march again. He thinks he and NRA are going somewhere.

Inside the organization are many who aren't sure whether the present codes can be readjusted satisfactorily. In the big rush to get industries under the codes many squawks were tossed into the barrel, quite wittingly. Theory was that those could be removed at leisure. But when they "squawked" and opened price reductions, industries will be now eliminated, industries will sabotage the codes. Already, they say, their chief worry concerns administration. Industries have been given enormous powers of operation and who's to see that they don't abuse them?

Strange "Bedfellows"
The "squawk meeting" drew the biggest NRA gathering and the greatest platform galaxy of NRA officials since the cotton textile code hearing opened in the same Commerce Building auditorium.

Some of the big shots had disappeared in the intervening eight months—Dudley Cates, Alexander Sachs and Bobby Strauss, among them—but others took their places.

Again NRA was spoken of as operating in a "goldfish bowl," though everyone since has learned that all NRA fixing is done at private conferences.

Johnson has tired in eight months and looks it. Still plenty of steam, but obviously less. His secretary-assistant, the inevitable "Robbie," appeared with him, in a brown seersucker topped by a couple of yellow and white ruffles.

The platform gang posed as if it were in the industrial, labor, and consumer advisory boards. Don Richberg, who likes to tell how some newspapers call him dangerously radical and others say he's disgustingly conservative, had been home sick and returned there quickly after his speech.

Others flanking Johnson were Col. R. W. Lea, handsome assistant administrator for industry, and Administrator A. W. Whiteside, as sober and serious as something from the aquarium downstairs.

Myron Taylor of U. S. Steel and Robert Lund of the National Manufacturers' Association sat opposite Bill Green, John Lewis, Sidney Hillman, and other labor leaders they've been fighting for the last eight months.

Newcomers were Clarence Darrow, head of the new small enterprise board—who is very old, but seems younger than he did a year ago, and black-haired, double-chinned Leon Henderson, new boss of NRA research and planning.

Also a young man in wing collar and socks with enormous black and white checks who turned out to be a Mr. Steinberg, NRA publicity man for foreign language newspapers. In the front row one noticed Bob Minor, a Hoover assistant secretary, a commerce, happening to sit side by side, Johnson's speech, welcoming all criticism, but implying that critics were scoundrels drew faint applause. The audience was largely one of critics.

G. O. P. in New Role
The New Deal has brought so many reversals of form that some of the most cockeyed instances pass unnoticed. To name one, the Republican party has been stepping out as the champion of small business, labor and the consumer.

The entire G. O. P. senatorial contingent—regular and progressive—voted against busting of the Nye resolution, asking a report on the industrial background of all NRA officials. Only three Democrats—Cottigan, Dill, and Long—voted with them.

A Shot From Mr. Brown
Former Postmaster General Walter Brown was answering questions about the growth of aviation, proud of the stimulation given by mail contracts. "The only other industry that has grown more rapidly," he declared, "is the CWA."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Understand the Motives Behind Child Behavior—Fear of Punishment May Curb Self-Expression.

The motives behind behavior should be the concern of all parents of growing boys and girls. Olive Roberts Barton tells about these motives in another of her illuminating articles on modern child training.

There are several things to keep in mind concerning the growing boy or girl. The masculine is used most frequently in these articles for reasons of convenience but with some small differences "she" conforms largely to the same pattern.

We must not forget first of all that there is a "pull in the child. Natural instinct is in constant battle with the social. After all social standards are those set by man and not by nature.

He has a certain instinctive judgment of right and wrong, but it has not even a speaking acquaintance for awhile with the—let us call them—artificial tenets of organized society, its favorite morals, manners and prejudices.

The Mal-Adjusted Child
There is in every child this unconscious conflict between the two, but in some children it is more apparent. The completely mal-adjusted child is one of the greatest clinic problems today. It means that he cannot accept his particular environment and shows it in unusual behavior.

Another thing that older people forget, if they have ever thought about it at all, is that childhood is the time without perfect "values." There is little tolerance, for instance. Tolerance comes with years of practice. Therefore patience, the child of tolerance, will not be one of his strong points.

Reason and judgment do not blossom overnight, either. We go to our graves with this very thing still wanting perfection in us. Too many things interfere. Our emotions are the enemies of reason.

Number three is this: The child must "feed" his impulses. They are stronger now than will-power. His mind is a tyrant of a sort and insists on a thousand experiences. His developing self-prohibitions will usually tone down his more venturesome impulses, but not always. He is too likely to act first and think later. Fourthly, in both home and school jurisdiction, often justified, sometimes not, but we are speaking of motives behind conduct. As a matter of fact, behavior and conduct have a difference in meaning but for general purposes they are used interchangeably.

The Anger Habit
Fifthly, certain emotions in the childhood stage are rather stark and raw. Anger flares quickly, often over very little, and chooses ways to liberate itself that antagonize others. This in itself is a problem. It should slow down rather than increase if conditions are right, but it is fanned by deep-lying causes, and sometimes they are difficult to fathom.

Curiosity consumes him too. All manner of what we call bad conduct must be laid to its door. One could go on almost indefinitely. The motives behind behavior are not only interesting but important. If a mother might realize that her strenuous boy cannot be weighed in standard scales and judged impartially, it would be better. But it is highly desirable for fathers to think about, too, because fathers so often jump to conclusions.

Fear of punishment may curb the child's too liberal "expression of self," and discipline must play its part. But fear is like a grub at the root of a plant. It stops growth and kills the good with the bad. A good healthy fear combined with respect of the law is not destructive, but some fear is worse than anger in its destruction of mental and physical tissue. An understanding parent will not attempt to substitute a poison for an antidote.

NEXT: Rackets.

"What has kept you so late?"
"I was fixing a new ribbon on my typewriter."
"You ought to be ashamed to own a typewriter!"
"You get rid of her or there'll be trouble!"

Gran'ma was feelin' right Pearl. Providing for the future and worrying over it are two different things. An aged couple had been sitting in front of the fire a long time without speaking. At length the husband inquired: "What were you thinking about?"

The wife replied: "I was just thinking how long we had lived together and that it couldn't go on forever like this and the time will soon come when one of us will have to go."

"Yes," assented the old man, "but it's no use to worry about that now."

"No," was the reply, "but I was just thinking that when it does happen I would like to go to California to live."—Security News.

Twenty-third Day—March 8

Food hoarding began to be noted in some cities, and there was a small but noticeable rise in prices.

Long shadows ahead were cast by an order issued by the Federal Reserve Board. Member banks were to report names of all persons withdrawing gold since February 1 who failed to return it by March 13.

Banks began to open for the limited business permitted by the Treasury regulations, which came out almost hour by hour. Local authorities began issuing scrip in some cases, but the idea of a national scrip was abandoned in favor of the new Federal Reserve Bank notes which still are in use, and which the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was beginning to grind out and distribute.

Announcement by the Prohibition Bureau that it would concentrate on sources and let speakeasies go to local enforcement was allowed to pass almost unnoticed, for by now most people slowly were beginning to realize that prohibition was dead.

Times change, but these remain: Friendship and love and song, In spite of loss and pain, Failure and plans gone wrong, Life still holds countless charms, Which nothing ever harms, If gold had never been coined, And money never known, Lives had by love been joined, Roses had still been grown, Friendships had still been made, So why be so afraid? Over us bends the sky, Near us the budding trees, Earth's pathways, beauties, Still toll the honey bees, Still ripple silver streams, Where the bright sunlight gleams, We shall go on to joy, We shall new glories find, Time cannot quite destroy, Home ties and peace of mind, After the present pain, We shall rejoice again.—E. The keynote of the decorations was spring, and the theme was very beautifully carried out with a quantity of jonquills, yellow bells and other spring flowers. Bridge was played from five tables, with the accessories emphasizing the St. Patrick motif. Attractive favors were to Mrs. E. J. Barham and Mrs. Lloyd Spencer and a dainty gift was presented to the honoree. Following the game a most tempting salad course with punch was served. The program closed with a very interesting account of his life following his retirement from the presidency by Mrs. Hugh Smith. Roll call responses brought out many interesting features pertaining to Roosevelt's personal life closing an unusually instructive and entertaining program on the "Man of Action" said to be the most versatile of all of our presidents. The club was delighted to welcome Miss Maggie Bell, a member who has spent the past four months in Texarkana. The hostesses served a delicious salad course with hot coffee. Favors went to Miss Miriam Carlton, Miss Martha Martindale and Miss Anne Martindale. Following the game the guests were invited into the dining room, where on the dining table which was covered with white cloth and lighted with tall white tapers burning in low silver holders, a most attractive array of gifts from the guests were arranged for the honoree's inspection. that all the P. T. A. units in the city had attained a superior rating, she also urged the council to co-operate with the senior class, which is sponsoring a puppet show at the city hall, March 13. At the close of the business session, Mrs. Lester introduced Dr. J. M. Williams, former president of Galloway college and now with Hendrix college, who gave a most inspiring address. In part, Dr. Williams said, "I believe the P. T. A. is potentially the greatest organization in America today, your efforts are immensely worthwhile, you can sow fine things in the lives of children without getting results. Your children must realize that you place a high value on them. The enthusiasm of a group like this, carries over to the community." "Life today," Dr. Williams continued, "isn't as fine in actuality as it used to be. No nation has ever outlived its moral life. As long as American womanhood stands four square, our nation shall be secure. Your job, as I see it, is to work for human conservation. Make boys and girls your continuous major project."

"To hear some of you fellows talk, one might think you were seated in office for eternity. So far as I can see you are just another group of politicians who within the next 36 months will likely face a crushing defeat at the hands of the Republican party which, if I may venture the opinion, will be due entirely to your own stupidity."

"I notice you advocate that the bankers go into their communities in search of deserving loans. I would not have to go outside of our lobby to find more than we could possibly take care of."

"Also I notice in one of the bank papers under the heading 'Whose Face is Getting Red,' that the National Bank of Commerce in Houston, Tex., of which I understand you are chairman, has reduced its loans by 11.1 per cent, yet you tell the rest of us to dish it."

"When I believe that our merchants can safely and profitably borrow money, with a reasonable assurance of paying it back, I shall tell them so. In the meantime we sit tight. This is not my money, neither is it yours. It belongs to the depositors."

Since February 9, when they with all domestic air mail contracts were annulled, he said, he has tried unsuccessfully to obtain a hearing before Postmaster General Farley.

Meanwhile, Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, speaking in the Senate, cited testimony before the Senate Banking Committee that J. P. Morgan & Co. and others, had sold aircraft stock shortly before cancellation of the contracts as evidence that "international bankers" had advance information.

"It would be interesting to know how they learned about it," Robinson commented. "Evidently the money changers have not been driven out of the temple."

Fall to Lay 'Angina Pectoris' to Smoking or Drinking

So much has been written and said about the relationship of alcohol and tobacco to the heart disease called "angina pectoris" that an investigation was made recently to discover whether smoking or drinking could produce this ailment.

And the results seem to show that the disease hardly can be attributed to these causes. Seven hundred fifty people with angina pectoris were compared with 750 others who did not have the disease, but who were of the same age, and of the same social group.

The comparison of the habits of the two groups of people brought out the fact that 45.1 per cent of those who had angina pectoris never had smoked tobacco, while 24.4 per cent of those who had the disease had used tobacco to excess.

Thirty-seven and two-tenths per cent of those who did not have angina pectoris did not smoke, and 33.5 per cent smoked excessively.

Obviously, it is exceedingly difficult from figures like these to trace any relationship between tobacco smoking and the occurrence of angina pectoris. It is possible, however, to say from these figures that tobacco smoking is not primarily responsible for angina pectoris.

As to abstinence from alcoholic liquors, 64.4 per cent of those with angina pectoris never had taken alcohol, and 61.7 per cent of those who did not have angina pectoris never had taken alcohol.

Only 8 of 750 patients with the disease drank considerable or excessive alcohol—about 1.1 per cent. On the other hand, 63 per cent of the people who did not have angina pectoris drank a good deal of alcohol and four of them were very heavy drinkers.

It must be pointed out, in this connection, that persons who drink to such a great excess are likely also to eat to excess, and, in fact, do practically everything else to excess, so that even though small doses of alcohol for the average person might help to keep off such a condition, alcohol will not do this in the presence of other aggravating causes.

$125,000 Awarded Russian Princess

English Jury Rules "Rasputin," American Movie, Labeled Her

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Princess Irena Youssoupoff was awarded $125,000 ($125,000) damages in her libel suit against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Ltd., producers of the film "Rasputin and the Empress."

The verdict, one of the largest in the history of British libel cases, was received with amazement by the crowded courtroom as a dramatic new climax in the sensation-filled story of the mad monk of the Russian court.

The princess, who had asked $2,000,000 from the motion picture company, exclaimed that she was "completely satisfied with the verdict."

The defendants are expected to appeal.

The award followed a trial filled with sensations. Princess Irena announced that she intends to sue every theater where the film has been exhibited throughout the United States and Great Britain.

It was contended by the princess that the character, Natasha in the picture was a libel against her and her character.

In New York, J. Robert Rubin, general lawyer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, said: "We are shocked at the verdict. In presenting the picture, 'Rasputin,' there was no intention of portraying the Princess Irena. The character of Natasha is a purely fictitious one. We are advised by our London counsel that they feel the judge misdirected the jury, and that the Appellate Court will reverse the trial court. They are applying Tuesday for a stay of execution pending an appeal. We have every hope and expectation that a careful examination of all the facts and the law by the Appellate Court will show this verdict to be totally erroneous."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Strolling A Mile A Day A Step to Loveliness

Walking makes for health and health begets beauty—which look in the mirror. A face starting is good, enough reason for walking a mile a day. If you don't believe that it makes you more attractive, out and again when you return. Aren't eyes brighter, skin more glowing, body lighter and more supple?

Learn to enjoy your daily walk. Smile; think pleasantly of other persons; interesting things you've done, amusing places you've visited—not just of the fact that you have to take this bit of exercise to preserve health and beauty. Walk briskly with head up and see how soon you forget your troubles. Difficult situations often seem less troublesome after you've covered the first quarter of a mile.

Walk with weight on the outside edges of the balls of your feet and your toes will point straight ahead instead of turning outward in graceless manner. Let your whole body swing. Arms should be free and allowed to move back and forth, so if you want to get the most out of walking, leave your purse at home instead of tucking it under an arm.

GOOD TASTE IS EVERYTHING

In cigarettes, too! So in making Lucky Strike cigarettes we use the finest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—and only the center leaves—they are the mildest, the smoothest. And every Lucky is so round, so firm, so fully packed—no loose ends.

Always the Finest Tobacco and only the Center Leaves

NOT the top leaves—they're underdeveloped—they are harsh

The Cream of the Crop

"The mildest, smoothest tobacco"

NOT the bottom leaves—they're inferior in quality—coarse and always sandy!
